KRS offers scholarships; word on summer hires pending

By Jim Bennett
Editor

Ten students next year will benefit from Kwajalein Range Services scholarship offerings of close to $40,000 total in the next few weeks, according to Carmen Spencer, KRS president.

The company is offering two $10,000 scholarships to any Marshallese employee or his or her immediate family to include a spouse or child. The scholarship is good at any accredited university in the United States. The company also will give out four two-year scholarships to Marshallese employees and students to attend the College of the Marshall Islands.

"We were going to wait until next year," said Carmen Spencer, KRS president. "However, we want to continue our momentum of working closely with our host nation to improve the quality of life. Sustainable development is one of our top corporate objectives."

Spencer said he hopes to create more specific procedures before the end of the next school year, but wanted to go ahead and give out the awards this year, as well.

Kwajalein Police cordoned off Laagoon and 9th streets Wednesday from 2:30 to 3:35 p.m., after construction crews found a 155mm U.S. artillery projectile buried between the Fuel Farm tanks.

"Dick Pacific [Construction Company] was doing some digging in the Fuel Farm area and they came across what they thought was unexploded ordnance," said KPD Operations Lt. Der-

Bikes parked right in front of the Post Office steps; a beeping van backing up; a little water spill on Café Pacific's kitchen floor; and a laughing toddler standing up in a moving Burley — all scenes from a day on Kwajalein and all accidents waiting to happen.

"Safety is an attitude and a philosophy that you have to adopt," said Tom Webber, USAKA/RTS Safety director.

That attitude is what both KRS and USAKA want to see instilled in all residents during Safety Stand Down Week which started Wednesday. In an effort to achieve a zero accident level, a combination of departmental all-hands meetings and targeted individual work areas hands-on training started May 28 on Kwajalein, Roi and Meck and runs through June 5.

"In the Army I lost six people — four uniformed and two civilians — all safety related [incidents]," said Carmen Spencer, KRS president, to the assembled Aviation department Wednesday as he plans to do at each departmental all-hands meeting. "Is safety just a one-day-a-year program or the way we do business? It's not a program. It's the way we do business."

Referring to the recent loss of an employee, due to an off-work bicycling accident, and the pain of having to tell the employee's family of eight, Spencer said, "Every individual, as part of the KRS team, has the authority to stop work if they see an unsafe act."

"What can I do differently to make sure I'm safe and everybody I work with is safe?" said Norman Black, KRS Environmental, Safety and Health manager.

Previously a Safety Stand Down Day, Black and Mike Dowsett, KRS Safety manager, agreed there were too many areas to address, Webber said.

"You can't just force it down the

High school seniors should look to Nike for success

It's the time of year when high school seniors look to whatever life holds in store for them beyond high school.

In the coming week, they'll attend a number of special events in their honor culminating on Kwajalein in graduation June 6.

In Broken Arrow, Okla., where I went to school, we held the graduation of our 900-plus seniors in the Oral Roberts University Mabee Center. Maybe you get a diploma, maybe not and about 55 seniors who walked across the stage didn't.

It was the same place I saw Garth Brooks in concert, and I'm not sure which event drew a bigger crowd.

Now let me address the seniors here. You have every right to be proud. You've earned a diploma. Who knows who will be where doing what in 15 or 20 years, but the important thing is to measure your success based on your life goals and what is important to you.

OK, on the other hand, let's compare you to some of your other classmates in America, like, say, LeBron James of St. Vincent-St. Mary High School in Akron, Ohio. He just inked an endorsement deal with Nike worth $90 million over the next seven years. That doesn't include a multi-million dollar contract with the Cleveland Cavaliers to play basketball. I believe his parents are proud.

Truth be told, I've seen this Kwaj senior class, and none of you are 6-foot-8 with the ability to average 30.4 points, 9.7 rebounds, 4.9 assists and 2.9 steals per game. Also, would the mention of your name allow a moribund basketball franchise to sell out 41 home games nearly six months before the season even starts?

I hear the junior class snickering, but one of yours, Freddy Adu, a 13-year-old set to graduate next year, just signed a $1 million endorsement deal with Nike. Did I mention he's a soccer prodigy, originally from Ghana, who plays with the Under-17 U.S. National Team?

I know what you're thinking. "How well do you stack up, Ace?"

In all honesty, my classmates include Cameron Diaz, who does pretty well in the movies. Oops, no, she dropped out at age 16, to begin her modeling career.

Shaquille O'Neal is a month older than me, stands nearly two feet taller, and weighs more than two of me. He also makes a bit more money, playing center for the Los Angeles Lakers, occasionally rapping and making a movie or moonlighting as an L.A. County Sheriff's deputy.

The class of '90's Pedro Martinez has done pretty well too, pitching for the Boston Red Sox and earning three Cy Young Awards over the years. He is 4-2 with a 2.83 ERA on the season so far and will make $13.5 million this year.

But all of my classmates listed above pay taxes, lots of taxes, and thanks to legislators and lobbyists who killed the recent provision to repeal the Foreign Earned Income Tax Exclusion, I still don't.

So you see, it's all in perspective. You have the opportunity to go out in the world and be yourself and be successful in whatever endeavor you attempt.

And, try to get Nike to sign you for endorsements.

Letters to the Editor

Former Kwaj kid appreciates island life

Dear Kwaj Residents:

My name is Farrah Miller. My parents are Bob and Dotty Miller, and my brothers are Jonathan and David Miller. I lived on Kwaj until I was 10. I was born there, and believe it or not, I was born when the hospital was being rebuilt. I was the second child born in the tents.

Now that I'm gone, I appreciate the beauty of Kwaj. When I lived there, it didn't cross my mind that I would be PCSing on Oct. 27, 2002. The day I left we had almost all of our family's friends trying to get the cat. When we got her, all of us were on the porch, crying our eyes out. Especially me. The minute I got on the plane, I thought of Emon Beach, Coral Sands, Camp Hamilton, the ocean and everything that makes Kwaj the greatest place on Earth to live. If I could wind back time, I would wind it back as far as I could when I was living on Kwaj. I would use all the time to appreciate Kwaj and its wonders.

Just writing this letter makes me cry. Let this letter be a lesson to you. For one, appreciate something while you have it cause you never know when it will be gone forever.

And secondly, enjoy living on Kwaj while you're there because you never know when you can't run and jump into the cool ocean water or go boating to Bigej and walk around the island to collect shells.

So enjoy Kwaj as best as you can, and don't forget to be as happy as possible while doing it!

Sincerely,
Farrah Miller

Hope honored on 100th

By Rudi Williams

American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON – Several years ago, Comedienne Phyllis Diller asked Bob Hope, “Who would want to be 100 years old?” Bob answered, “Anyone who is 99.”

Bob Hope became a centenarian May 29. Among a slew of celebrations across the country, the Library of Congress held a reception and stage tribute to Hope on May 22. The event was a variety show that explored his life through song, dance and comedy.

Hosted by entertainer Dick Cavett and actor Boyd Gaines, the review featured vaudeville-type skits, dance routines, tap dancing, Broadway tunes, “Ziegfeld Follies” skits, and skits from radio, television and the musical “Red, Hot, and Blue.”

Hope’s performance in “Red, Hot, and Blue” opened the door to his first major feature film for Paramount Pictures, “The Big Broadcast of 1938.”

Cavett told the audience that five years ago, the Hope family gave the Library of Congress tons of material from Hope’s 80 years of show business, including more than 85,000 pages of Hope’s jokes. These comedic holdings have been typed, scanned, digitized and indexed by topic and subtopic. The Hope gallery features a touch-screen kiosk where visitors can read them.

The library’s theater was packed with family, friends and well-wishers. One was Fayard Nicholas, 88, who has been friends with Bob Hope since they met in a show in 1936.

“I haven’t seen Bob for a while, but we still send each other birthday and Christmas cards,” said Nicholas, half of the famous dancing duo “Nicholas Brothers.” The other half was his late brother, Harold, who died in July 2000 at the age of 79.

“We appeared in the ‘Ziegfeld Follies’ on Broadway in 1936 and have been friends ever since,” Nicholas said. “Every time we see each other, we talk about the old times – like when we went to Vietnam in 1965 with the USO show. He’d say, it’s been a long time, hasn’t it?”

“I’d say, ‘Yes, we’ve been friends for a long time,’” said Nicholas, who lives in Toluca Lake, Calif., about five miles from where Hope and his wife Delores live. “He’s really a nice guy.”

Hope, who has befriended every president since Franklin Roosevelt, has received more than 2,000 birthday cards and thousands of e-mails.

The Library of Congress event was part of a yearlong celebration that started with 2003 New Year’s Day Rose Parade in Pasadena, Calif.

Bob’s reaction to all the attention, according to daughter Linda Hope: “He’s all smiles.” “As for us,” she continued, speaking for the family, “we are overwhelmed by the outpouring of love, admiration and best wishes given Dad by the American public. The celebration has become quite emotional.

Fayard Nicholas of legendary “The Nicholas Brothers” dance team has been calling Bob Hope friend ever since they met in a Broadway show in 1936. He smiles for the camera as he autographs a program for the tribute to Bob Hope at the Library of Congress in Washington May 22.

Our thanks to all these wonderful people is expressed through tears of joy.”

Primarily a comedian, Bob Hope has acted, sang, danced, hosted his own radio and television shows and starred in 60 movies, all while entertaining troops in World War II, Korea, Vietnam and Desert Storm.

‘Iraqi Freedom’ sees technology advances in logistics

By Spc. Bill Putnam

Army News Service

WASHINGTON — Time and digital technology helped win Operation Iraqi Freedom, even if huge gambles were taken with extended supply lines, said Army generals in charge of logistics at a video teleconference May 19.

The build up to both wars in the Persian Gulf took about six months but there were big differences in getting soldiers to the front line, said Brig Gen. Vincent Boles from Baghdad.

Port size and the numbers of ports were probably one of the biggest differences between Operation Desert Storm and Operation Iraqi Freedom, said Brig. Gen. Jack Stulz, the deputy commander of the 377th Transportation Support Command.

Kuwait has just one port dedicated to commercial shipping and that limited the number of ships that could be in port, he said. There are three big ports in Saudi Arabia and that allowed a larger amount of ships to off-load at the same time during Desert Storm, he explained.

The “key” for Iraqi Freedom was the Army pre-positioned stocks of vehicles, ammunition and supplies that floated or sat in warehouses before the war, Stulz said. Those supplies and vehicles were enough to field five brigade-sized units, he said.

During Operation Desert Storm the Army tried to build mountains of supplies, about 60 days worth, he said.

For Operation Iraqi Freedom there were only about five to seven days of supplies on hand, Stulz said.

“We didn’t build mountains, we moved it and smoothed it out much like you do in civilian business,” said Stulz.

The advent of digital technology also helped track what supplies were on a ship, where on that particular ship they were and where the ship was, said Boles.

The new Blue Force Tracking system also helped track where supply convoys were on the ground in Iraq, said Brig. Gen. Jerome Johnson.

Safety is part of the job one should take home ...

throats in one day," he said. "You have to tailor it to the areas too, to be more specific so you can get more out of it ... to provide the right level of emphasis that is needed. Some of the aspects that the Marine Department has to worry about Aviation guys don't have to worry about."

The Marine Department scheduled "Man overboard" and hazardous waste handling training while Aviation personnel underwent stress management and transporting hazardous cargo training.

But safety training isn't for just the most dangerous jobs on island. At Café Pacific all food service workers gathered for safety training. Spills, burns and cuts topped the safety hazard list.

"Hold knives down and keep them sharp. A dull knife is one of the biggest reasons that people get cut," said Billy Reynolds, Café Pacific shift supervisor.

Behind Ten-Ten, a crowd of over 60 people from the retail and service stores, Post Office and merchandising supply listened to Lt. Mike Gabany, Fire Prevention fire inspector, explaining how to put out a fire. Then, one by one, until the supply of extinguishers ran out, each worker practiced what Gabany preached by extinguishing gasoline fires repeatedly set in a trough.

"I learn it, but it's a little bit hard," said Lolita Fellows, Post Office clerk, after she put out a blazing fire. "If something is going on, you have to do it."

The retail and merchandising group has two more area-specific training sessions this week, but like all other work areas on island, this is just a concentrated extension of on-going training.

"We have bicycle safety on Friday and tomorrow we have ladder and lifting safety," said Roy Tomas, Ten-Ten manager. "Basically we do a safety class every month."

On Saturday, Kwajalein Operations is having a full day of "participative events" for 300 employees, said John Brown, Kwajalein Operations manager. "Like scaffold construction, fall protection, oxygen and acetylene cutting ... Also vehicle backing.

"There are a lot of instances in the past of backing into light posts," he said, adding that the department has mandatory weekly safety training and also job site safety training specific to an individual job or task.

But safety awareness goes beyond the workday and employees who require hard hats and steel-toed shoes to safely perform their jobs, Webber said. Awareness extends to water safety, bicycle riding and even where a bike is parked. If it is blocking an area where people should be able to walk, like in front of the Post Office steps, then it is a safety hazard.

Since KRS took over full contract performance March 1, 35 KRS employees have been hurt on the job, Black said. Off the job, that number is more than 140.

"It is our intent to instill the safety culture at work and hope that it will transfer off the job," Black said.

As part of that training, psychologist Marion Ruffing spoke to the junior and senior high school students about the dangers of alcohol on Thursday and an elementary school bicycle rodeo is scheduled for Monday morning.

"Whether you are in at work, working on an airplane or you're driving down the road on your Huffy with your kid sitting in the basket, if it doesn't seem safe, it's probably not," Black said. "Think before you do anything — work, play, rest."

The Safety offices, both RTS and USAKA fight to make residents aware of risks and safety hazards both off work through safety flyers, roller notices and regulations, but people should be self-policing off the job, Black said.

"It shouldn't be safety people running about mandating safety," Black said, adding safety awareness should work in the same way as the Scuba Club, which is chartered to provide licensed instructors and requires annual safety training for all their members.

Some people, though, decide to be unsafe on their own time and declare it is their own decision to take the risks, Webber said.

"I'm here to tell you that is not the case because you are on a military installation now and the acceptance of risk in your personal life costs us money," he said. "That is not an option out here ... you don't get the same kind of freedoms to be as stupid as you want because it is still a military installation."

Despite regulations and guidance to the contrary, people still don't think about risks.

"It only takes one time when one of these toddler-level kids standing up in a Burley falls out and hits their head," Webber said. "It's over; there is not an option for that child. It only takes once for that to happen for everyone to say, 'why didn't they say something?' Well, we have."

Ignoring safety or risks off the job such as riding down the street on a Huffy with a child on your shoulders, which Webber saw, has a definite relationship to on-the-job attitudes, Black said.

"We're here literally to perform the mission and it comes down to cost, quality production and employee relation safety," he said. "I wonder what they do at the mission that could compromise that mission. What is in that attitude of that person that says, 'that's ok, that's an acceptable risk. I'll gamble with my own child's life.'"

"Will that same person gamble with what is going on in the mission?" he said.

If a person or a family member is hurt and has to go off-island, then the mission is affected because the employee is not there or because the employee is stressed about his or her injured family member.

Said Black, "That's why Carmen is absolutely vested in the zero-accident philosophy because it is more than safety."

Scholarships available ...

In the future, recipients may receive a job with KRS upon graduation.

"They can pursue a college degree and come back to KRS with a job commensurate with their college education," Spencer said.

Additionally, the company is awarding $2,500 scholarships to four Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School seniors. The program will be based strictly on academic achievement this year, since the company hasn't had time to establish other governing criteria. In the future, however, Spencer said he plans to create an application process that will include public service, school involvement and character, to name a few traits, the only requirement now and in the future being the student attends Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School.

"For the Kwaj kids, it's giving back to the community we serve," Spencer said, adding the money for the scholarships is not billed back to the contract, but rather comes out of the company's profits.

To apply for any of the scholarships, applicants should submit a cover letter or e-mail, along with a transcript or academic credentials to Joe Marshall, Community Services deputy program manager. Applicants should specify for which scholarship they are applying.

Meanwhile, Spencer said KRS hopes to establish a summer-hire program in the next two weeks, but must battle an $11 million budget cut that took effect recently and runs through the next fiscal year.

"There are a number of things we can use summer hires to do around here," Spencer said. "My goal and objective is to have the program, but if the government can't afford it, I may not be able to. We will have answers in the next two weeks."

Club sets grand re-opening Band kicks off events

By Jim Bennett

Editor

Gilligan's Bar and Grill will host a grand re-opening Wednesday, in conjunction with the arrival of Los Elegantes, a latino band, sponsored by Armed Forces Entertainment.

The bar will open its doors at 6 p.m., with the band set to play at 8 p.m. The bar will close at 11 p.m.

The bar's grill will feature Mexican dishes for the performance.

Gilligan's reopened two weeks ago after closing in February for structural problems on primarily the other side of the building and in the kitchen. With those sections closed off, the soft-opening was designed to "work the kinks out," said Debora Spencer, Gilligan's Bar and Grill manager. The staff is undergoing re-training, but "everyone has found their groove," she said.

The Wednesday performance kicks off a series of events at the bar next month including DJ-music Saturday and Sunday nights with different themes from country to classic and popular rock, the return of trivia game Quizzo, ladies nights with drink specials and karaoke.

rick Lemmie, who assumed the on-scene commander position at the Fuel Farm until the Explosive Ordnance Disposal team arrived.

Lemmie, Cpl. Gino Greenwood and Cpl. Brian Robinson arrived to find the 24-inch long, six-inches in diameter, 80-pound projectile sitting in a 3- to 4-foot deep trench.

"The cone of the round itself was exposed," Lemmie said. "The fact that it was in the Fuel Farm is what concerned me ... Fuel lines are running all through there and the tanks are pretty close together. It's a good thing they stopped [digging] when they did."

EOD technician Joshua Rich, backed up by Launch Ordnance technician Ron Hall, since the second EOD technician is currently off-island, picked up the round and moved it to the EOD bunker for later disposal.

"It has about 15 pounds of explosive charge," Rich said. "It wouldn't blow up the island, but shrapnel from it could have punctured one of the storage tanks and could have caused a fire."

Ordnance is found all over the island according to both Lemmie and Rich.

"We found an 81 mm mortar about 10 days ago behind the adult pool," Rich said.

If someone finds what they suspect is ordnance, Lemmie said, "Don't touch it. Get a hold of the Fire Department or us."

"It was kind of spooky for a while," he added about the Fuel Farm incident.

Ticket office hosts anny specials ...

company is holding a drawing for free tickets next month and offering special fares.

Through next week, residents may enter a drawing for a free round-trip ticket wherever Continental Micronesia flies, except Hawaii and Japan, Duarte said. The ticket office will draw two winners from the box.

Anyone, however, may take advantage of special rates this summer. The airline is marking down tickets by almost 35 percent for a companion ticket to any city in the states. The two tickets run $1,000 for the first ticket and $999 for the second, or around $750 for a child age 2-11 years. Tickets must be purchased 14 days in advance. For more information, contact Continental ticket office at 51013.

The company also marked the occasion with a special visit by corporate executives Wednesday. Dan Morgan, manager and director of operations; Wally Dias, vice president of sales and promotions; and Art Day, regional director; stopped on Kwajalein with the regularly scheduled flight and met with the local Continental staff and Col. Jerry Brown, USAKA commander, and Carmen Spencer, KRS president, among others.

Catch of the Week

The crew of, from left, Doug Hoskins, Dave Wallner, the Rev. Rick Funk and Mark Thimsen, caught this 350-plus blue marlin Tuesday about half a mile out of South Pass.

It was the first catch for Funk, on his first fishing trip since arriving on Kwajalein. "Rick, being the new guy, was handed the pole and told to reel him in," Thimsen said. "It took 30 minutes and he did it all himself. The fish nearly spooled the reel but we were fortunate that the winds were light and we were able to back down on the fish for a while."

NOTICE OF availability. USAKA Draft Document of Environmental Protection for Routine Maintenance Dredging and Filling. The U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll

(USAKA) Environmental Standards require that the operating parameters of USAKA activities, with the potential to affect the public health and environment, must be defined in a Document of Environmental Protection (DEP). The Standards further provide that regulatory agencies and the public be allowed to review and comment on the draft DEP. A draft DEP was developed by USAKA for Routine Maintenance Dredging and Filling. This DEP will govern dredging and filling activities required for routine maintenance of shorelines, harbors, channels, piers, boat ramps, and water intakes and outfalls. The DEP applies only to previously dredged or filled areas. The DEP specifies requirements, limitations, and monitoring, reporting, notification and records keeping procedures. The public is invited to review and comment on this draft DEP. This draft DEP and the Environmental Standards are available for review at the Grace Sherwood Library, the Roi-Namur Library and the Alele Museum and Library. Questions regarding the DEP can be directed to: Chris Grzybowski, USAKA Protection specialist, (808)355-2022. Written comments can be directed to: Commander; U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll; ATTN: SMDC-RD-TE-K-CP; P.O. Box 26; APO, AP, 96555-2526. A period of at least 30 days is provided for public comment. Comments should be postmarked no later than June 13, 2003.

Continental Mic marks 35 years

By Jim Bennett
Editor

Continental Micronesia marked 35 years of service to the islands this week, while Kwajalein's ticket office entered its teens with the same manager who opened the office in 1990.

"I signed a two-year contract to come out here," said Yvonne Duarte, Continental ticket office site manager. "I love it here. It's just a unique place."

Part of Kwajalein's uniqueness comes from Duarte's world; travel that is. But that's changed over the years, particularly following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

"People are not traveling so readily," she said, adding the number one overseas destinations used to be Bali, Australia and New Zealand. The three countries still top overseas bookings, but not as much. "[Sept. 11] had a profound impact on how people think."

Travel to the states remains the top-seller, but besides vacation travel, the city ticket office also works with other travel matters such as family and medical emergency travel.

Duarte described the job as "very rewarding," adding she gets a lot of satisfaction from giving back to the community.

Continental donates a portion of sales to the Recreation Fund, like other retail outlets, though it's not contractually required, Duarte said. In an average year, the company kicks in $70,000 to $75,000.

"We put it in the Rec Fund so that everybody gets a part of it, not just one group," she said.

Additionally, the company supports the Shriner's effort to send children with medical needs to Honolulu and stateside hospitals by offering tickets discounted 75 percent for the child and escort. They send on average, eight to 12 children off-island every year.

To celebrate the years on-island, the
